PAST TRIPS

25th April – MT. BRUCE BIRD SANCTUARY

The trip to Mt. Bruce Bird Sanctuary was held on 25th April instead of 24th April as advertised due to lack of transport being available on Saturday. The weather was beautiful, fine and warm and a very enjoyable day was spent by all. Unfortunately the Kiwis were not on display, as apparently they were enroute for Osaka Zoo, Japan. The Sanctuary is well worth a visit if only to give you a closer look at many of New Zealand's native birds and as additions seem to be being made all the time, the display is changing constantly.

Those attending: Lynne Potter, Keither Potter, Claire Hoby, Russ Johnson & family, Nissen family, Colin Hoare, Heather Crabb.

8th-9th May BUSHCRAFT

I have heard an earlier trip report of mine described as absolutely horrible. One indignant defender of traditional forms and categories didn't regard it as a true trip report at all, and one member even thanked me for not mentioning her name. Therefore, I was tempted to spare you this, but I am apparently duty bound. And "When duty cries aloud, conscience is not deaf" (Wordsworth? No, Pither.) So for the facts.....The flu bug knocked out four starters including the trip leader. One of the chauffeurs was pressed into service as trip leader. Someone's car had also picked up a bug and wouldn't start on Saturday morning, and someone (the same someone) got half way to Shannon before remembering to pack his boots. Eventually twelve people; eight members, a visitor from the Manawatu and three rangers (girl guide - not park), left the upper dam about 9.00 a.m.

The intention was that we should operate as three groups of four, each group practicing lighting its own fire, tent pitching, river crossing etc. There had been seven days of heavy rain prior to the trip so conditions were ideally suited to test our competence and, as you all know, "hardship and suffering is good both for the soul and character". (Pither? No, the Maquis de Sade in one of his more exhausted moments.) Camp was made by two groups just up river from Harris Creek Hut and one group camped by Harris Creek. Sunday morning, those near the hut did some elementary map reading and made several river crossings using various methods. We then returned to the dam. The Harris Creek Quartet soon joined us. They were rather reticent about what they had been practicing. I suspect it was the very sensible bushcrafts of eating and sleeping-bag bashing. Before finally leaving several partial climbing ascents of the dam wall were made.

Trip members: Tony Croad, Grant Potter, Cheryl Salmons, Vivienne Salmons, Lindsay Sandes, Richard Murcott, Adrian Turner, Christine Batt, Mary Mortenson, Brad Owen, Dave Ryrie, Wesley Dalefield.

22nd-23rd May WHOSE DONE THE MITRE?

On the weekend of 22nd & 23rd two parties entered the Tararuas, one an F.E. the other Medium. The Medium trip went to the Atiwhakatu saddle. On the saddle we had this discussion:

- D. "We've done the trip. Do you feel like doing some more?"
S. "O.K."
D. "One Possibility is that we go up onto the Holdsworth Mitre Ridge and complete the F.E. trip."
S. Right we'll give it ago.

So we set off up Baldy briefly stopping at Tori Spooner's Grave. From there onwards we were able to observe Angle Knob Hut taking particular note that it was not occupied.

At Holdsworth-Mitre ridge we built a prominent cairn inserting in it a note for the F.E. party. A last look at Angle Knob (4.30) showed it was still unoccupied. We crossed South King and stopped at Mid King Bivvy.

Sunday being very wet we had the following discussion:

- D. Wonder where the F.E. party is?
- S. Don't know, but should have seen them or their footprints.
- D. What about doing the Mitre?
- S. Could be done.

We cleared out the usual mess. A continuation was later made after an interval by going down the Mid King Spur, and proceeded for the benefit of "Doubting Thomases" to find p. 22 of current Mitre Flats Hut Log book, and found no mention of F.E. party so we wrote in what we did.

Trip members: Sue Streeter; Dave Ryrrie.
