LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir,

There is at the present time an interesting habit passing through the club. Some members are adopting ostrich-like attitudes when addressed by other members. Now we are all aware of the fact that ostriches are renowned for burying their heads in the sand. A small proportion of our humans seem to be imitating this trait for in order not to be recognised, they persist in burying their heads in packs, leaving only a pair of white socks visible, gazing at the ceiling with rapt, fanatical expressions or simply crawling into corners and making odd guffawing noises which defy a logical explanation.

Yours etc.

Ian Little, Roger Lander, Grant Potter, Brad Owen, Kevin Pearce, and Ian Hoare took part on this trip to the Eastern Tararuas. Powell hut was reached Friday night at 11.30 p.m. after a three hour tramp and we were away again at 7.15 a.m. next morning. We suspect that our comparatively early departure impressed the locals who showed signs of wishing to sleep in. A southerly breeze, a few flakes of snow and a haziness in the atmosphere immediately began to rot morale. At about 10 o'clock we were above the turn off to Angle Knob hut. Mutiny occurred and all were thankfully back in sleeping bags a short while later.

About mid afternoon Bill Olsen and Tony Morrison, almost complete with families, arrived at the hut but did not recognise us. This was not altogether surprising as we were becoming covered with bed sores. Just as our visitors were about to leave for Atiwhakatu hut we admitted our identity and they decided to stay the night. Thus it was that at 4.30 p.m. on Saturday there were twelve people in residence in the hut and the fire was going and was presumably making smoke.

Next morning Roger, Kevin and Ian Hoare left for South King and Pinnacle Ridge. The weather was not very wet but was similar to that enjoyed the previous day. The only rain was a light shower at 1 p.m. lasting about 15 minutes.

The remaining members of the party returned by way of Jumbo and the Atiwhakatu Stream. All were back at Holdsworth Lodge before 5 p.m.

The author is at a loss to explain the differences in certain facts given in this account and a certain earlier account of another trip to this area. Could one of these two trips be fictitious?

5th-7th June. RANGI

Due to unfortunate circumstances the scheduled Main Range, Tararua trip had to be cancelled. On Saturday a party went to Rangī. On arrival at the hut we had a brew, then we set off up the ridge towards Mangahuaia. About half way up the ridge blisters took a toll of two members so they decided to return to the hut. The balance of the party reached the top of the Mangahuaia Range by midday then returned to the hut for lunch. We left the hut in mid afternoon for an easy walk back to the cars.

Trip members: Peter Wallace, John Battersby, Dawn Ellis and Adrian Turner.

Queen's Birthday TARARUA CROSSING

Brad Owen, Kevin Pearce, Wally McKnight, Tony Morrison and Bill Olsen completed a successful crossing from Kiriwhakapapa to Otaki Forks via Waingawa, Bannister, Carkeek Ridge and Waitewaewae. The weather was good except perhaps on the Monday when rain brought up the rivers.

DISCLAIMER: There is absolutely no truth in the rumour that the president and vice president were seen climbing Ruapehu carrying large packets of soap powder with them; prior to the eruptions.
