FUTURE TRIPS

23 - 24 JUNE: N Ruahines Mid Winter Events

Tony Gates (ph 70-990) proposes to lead a fit tramp - grovel up to Sparrowhawk Biv. This is a hidden, rarely visited "dog-box" that is within fairly easy reach of Sunrise Hut.

Tricia Eder (ph 70-122) will be organizing the easy trip for the mid-winter gourmet event to be held at Sunrise Hut. Both teams will meet up to tramp together on Sunday. Warm clothes are essential, and for the adventurous, alpine equipment (skis) worth considering.

30 JUNE: S Ruahines

Daryl Rowan (ph 64-655) plans to lead a fit Saturday tramp to Ngamoka (Toka) Biv. This area is leatherwood city.

1 JULY: Terry Coburn (ph 86-391) plans to cater for those easier trampers. Once again a day trip (Sunday). The destination is the Ngamoko Range tops - probably via Short's Track.

7- 8 JULY: W Ruahines

Dave Hunt (ph 63-853) is planning to once again visit the Hikurangi Range. This time the destination is McKinnon Hut. A very good spot on a fine day. Take your ice axe and visit the Hikurangi and Mangaweka summits.

8 JULY: Gavin Rogerson (ph 34-702) plans a really easy family stroll much closer to home, to the Kahuterawa Valley.

14 - 15 JULY: N Tararuas

Barry Scott (ph 71-731) is to lead a northern crossing - a truly classic Tararua tramp similar to the ever popular southern crossing. This is winter tramping at its best, requiring a high level of fitness, and adequate equipment - (crampons, ice axe etc.). Hopefully, this tramp will meet up with the Sunday day trip.

15 JULY: Tricia Eder (ph 70-122) leading a medium tramp and Liz Morrison leading an easy tramp into the vicinity of Mitre Flats.

21 - 22 JULY: N Tararuas

Mary Crow (ph 290-749) reputedly led a tramp recently into the Southern Tararuas when it was misty all weekend. What will the luck be this time? This trip proposes to try Dundas Ridge and Hut. The nearby Roaring Stag Hut is the destination of Dave Orbell (ph 35-145) and his easy trampers. Also in the area, Tony Cameron (ph 65461) hopes to visit Herepai Hut and the snow.

28 - 29 JULY: Mt Ruapehu

Dave Hunt (ph 63-853) will lead an open ski - tramp - climb to the MUAC Hut on the Turoa slopes of Mt Ruapehu. Endless possibilities here. There are limited spaces in the hut, so be quick. Some can leave on Friday evening, others may like to leave on Saturday morning.

29 JULY: Doug Strachan (ph 75-732) hopes to take a medium "doddle" into the Holdsworth Lodge area.

For future trips and much more - stay tuned here.

"FROM THE PRESIDENT"

Well, winter is here, and with a vengeance too. Of all the scheduled trips, it would appear most venture forth onto the tops. It's the time of the year for snow and all that, so be prepared. Warm clothes are

. we have an enthusiastic team to prepare and print it. Please support your editors, and especially all you trip leaders that should write up your trip. This newsletter is your chance to practise your writing skills.

I recently attended a leadership course run by the Tararua Tramping Club. It was an interesting exercise to discuss on an informal basis such issues as - organisation, first aid, moral values, and possible problems. We have prepared guidelines for leaders; a few notes that will probably be revised and printed in our next trip card. Perhaps a sort of leadership course can be organised, so experienced and less experienced leaders can get together.

There are many aspects of recreation that deserve discussion. As for information from the committee, we accumulate a great deal of correspondence from other clubs. Most of it is good reading and is available to members upon request. Peter Wiles and Lance Broad have been active on conservation matters, and ensure PNTMC has a voice to be heard. More on that later.

Happy tramping, mountaineering and skiing

NEW MEMBERS

The Club would like to extend a welcome to Jan Naran, 22 Mere Mere Ave. ph 85-860; and also, Angela Lee, 954 Tremain Ave., ph 61-608
Marcel Hollenstein, 94 Wood Street, ph 80-245.

And farewell (temporarily) to Daniel, who is travelling abroad for a few months - (Canada / States etc? I understand (editor)). Good luck and safe travelling.

ENVIRONMENTAL UPDATE

The Continuing Case of The Aorangi - Awarua Block (Notes by Peter Wiles)

The Club notified the Rangitikei District Council that we objected to the proposal to log the block. The Contractors (Reeves Contractors Ltd of Rotorua) have a binding contract with the Maori Trustee owners of the land to log the property which lies on the north western boundary of the Ruahine Ranges - west of Ruahine Corner and east of the Rangitikei River.

Some History

Reeves application had been rejected by the Catchment Board at a hearing of the National Water and Soil Conservation Authority (NWASCA). The applicant took their case to appeal on a point of law to the Planning Tribunal and won. The Catchment Board appealed the decision in the High Court and lost. The case went back to NWASCA who were forced to accept the application but placed certain conditions on the operation (trees only greater than 450mm diameter, slopes less than 26° etc.). The next step was to get approval for a variation to the Rangitikei District Scheme - either as a Conditional Use for the land or as a Specified Departure.

The Hearing

A 3 day hearing was held in Marton at the end of May. There were about 20 parties represented at the hearing to present objections. The Council planning committee consisted of 2 men and 2 women. They had a lawyer and an expert assisting them.

Lance Broad presented our case. He was in the fortunate position of having an extensive knowledge of indigenous forestry management, as well as having a number of good sources of information.

Our case was based on the fact that the District Council did not have a indigenous forestry management policy, the applicants case was lacking in

We were not sure just what material we could use in our submission. We learned on the job that asking questions was a tricky business since cross examination was not allowed.

The applicants were represented by a lawyer who seemed to be a David Lange clone. The applicants had in addition 2 expert witnesses, one unfortunately whom I knew as a friend of Trevor Bissell.

The Manawatu - Wanganui Regional Council had a good submission to make. DOC had a lawyer plus an entourage of experts whose evidence was tedious. The harmony of the Maori community was brought into focus with the objection by Mr Mete-Kingi.

The Council has rejected the application on the grounds of it being a specified departure for which insufficient information has been provided and it is not a wise use for the area. It will be interesting to see what the next move by the applicants will be. They have one month in which to appeal to the Planning Tribunal. This will depend possibly when the Resource Management Act is brought into law. This is likely to be a test if it goes the distance.

(During the hearing, the council for the applicants tried to accuse DOC of trespassing on the property. If you plan to visit the area, it would be wise to tread cautiously - definitely no rifles etc.)

Watch This Space.

CONSERVATION NEWS

Wasps are becoming-somewhat of a problem in many areas of N.Z. Pamphlets are available at Club evenings warning of their menace, and requesting information for DOC. Really, what can we do about them?

Also worthy of note is another recent menace in the form of Clematis vitalba, a rather ubiquitous weed. PNCC is active in (attempting to) control it. I frequently drive about the Manawatu, and see vast areas of this weed. It makes me think it's well worthwhile trying to control it.

TRIP REPORTS

Waipawa/Waikamaka Hut 28-29 April

From the end of North Block Road, we walked up the Waipawa River to Waipawa Forks hut for morning tea. From here to Waipawa Saddle is a scramble over the dissected debris fans formed in the 1975 cyclone. The track over Waipawa Saddle has been re-cut in places, but finding the north end can be tricky. Strong cold winds made us abandon plans for a climb onto the tops.

On Sunday, the weather was cold, and Waipawa Saddle was crossed in mist and high wind. We stopped at Waipawa Forks Hut for lunch, followed by afternoon tea at Takapau.

We were: Arthur & Lis Todd, & Peter Groube.

Ruahines 19/20 May (Tony Gates)

Nothing special. It was one of those tramps into the Ruahines with a good bunch of blokes, mixed weather, and mixed terrain. No problems with Mick as leader, and Marcel, Tony, Jim and Daniel for support. The weather looked like it would be fine forever. We dodged up to Parks Peak Hut, enjoying the views. That wasn't far enough, so we continued on to Upper Makaroro Hut (dogbox ?). Enough daylight remained for both Tony and Marcel to look for deer. Began to think that any deer about would be pretty lonely. A huge dinner was enjoyed by all; no leftovers.

Sunday was a bit grotty (but we were optimists). Up Totara Spur, south for an hour or two, and we were into the clear. That was real tramping, with wide open spaces, views all about, and an easy route to follow. We bypassed Kylie Biv (and leatherwood) as we pressed south. New country for all of us. Colenso Trig, Colenso Ridge, the river, the sunshine, and it was all over.

Tramps aren't all that simple though as we pause to consider the historical perspective. In 1845 William Colenso, a missionary from Ahuriri (Napier), was the first known Pakeha to cross the Ruahine Range. He searched for the tribes of the Inland Patea, which lived near what is today known as the Aorangi Block. They could cross the Rangitikei River near the 'Narrows'. As a keen botanist, Colenso was ecstatic about specimens encountered. Nevertheless he enjoyed leatherwood (Olearia colensoi) as much as we do today. John Pascoe described Colenso, the first Pakeha to explore much of the Central North Island, as a pioneer of great persistence.

Lake Colenso area June 9 - 10th by Chris Saunders and Tony Gates

At 6.10am on Saturday morning, 4 enthusiastic trampers left Palmerston North, keen to get into the Mokai Patea range, after the first heavy snowfall of the winter. From the car park at Mokai station we were almost immediately in snow and at the first suitable spot Tony put on his skis and posed for photographs. He continued on skis while the rest of us walked, admiring the Christmas card scene of snow covered trees. As we climbed up the slope to the top of the range, we came into clear blue sky with a sea of cloud below, and the top of Ruapehu glistening to the west. Tony then left us to enjoy the fine snow conditions on his skis, arranging to see us at the car on Sunday afternoon. The rest of us plodded north to descend an appropriate spur to meet up with the track to Ironbark Hut. Because of some minor problems - mist and horizontal snow covered manuka, we 'enjoyed' a short bush bash and a quick lunch in a freezing spot beside a stream before meeting up with the correct track and dropping down to the Hut. By now it was nearly 3 pm, so we decided to stay at Ironbark rather than risk being benighted before reaching Lake Colenso Hut.

The trip out on Sunday was straight forward and quicker – and we met up with Tony at the car park before 3pm.

Farewell to the others, and straight into knee deep powder snow. (What dreams are made of!) Fabulous to cross - country ski on, but not the best for Telemarking and downhill. In conditions such as I ...

The Mokai Patea Range is a vast tussock plateau at about 1100m altitude. Plastered with snow, I could have skied anywhere. The deep bush-clad gullies were plastered as well, and I received the full "benefit" of all that snow as I grovelled down to Otokota Hut. (A two hour fight through snow laden forest, waist deep in melting snow, with the occasional bucket load on my head.) Good hut, good fire, good food and a really good sleep.

Sunday was much the same, only more snow! Back on the skis, - I even carved a few turns on route to the car. A memorable trip.

The trip were: Roger Redmayne (leader), Tony Gates, Chris Saunders and Bruce Taylor.
